Hi – here it is. Also I know we changed the text of the 1st question title. That was in an email from Ravi but it is what is on the website now.

Hi Vicki, sorry for the delay, I've had a billion meetings the past few days. Yes, I would say just change the wording to say the final report has been released. I have skimmed a comparison of the draft and final SAB report and it doesn't look like they made substantial changes in terms of the dermal recommendations.

Hi – I hate to bug you, but the website is supposed to go out tomorrow morning. I can release it still with draft there, but it would be better to change it to the final report. Can I just change the first sentence to say the final came out?

Thanks
Vicki

Hi Kathleen,

Below is the paragraph from the website that talks about the draft peer review report. Now that the final is out, you probably want to revise it – I've pasted it below. I was hesitant to just say the final report was released because I thought you might want to verify that the same info is in the final report. I also pasted the science topics in case you want to verify the CAAC references there also. Can you send any changes to me asap. We are hoping to release the website on Friday. Thanks - Vicki
